Text B is an extract from a book about Liverpool English called Scouse English. The book is part of a humorous series on different varieties of English.

Text B

PRONUNCIATION

The immediately recognisable features of the Scouse dialect are the congested, nasal sounds reminiscent of catarrh, together with a plaintive singsong pronunciation where a sentence starts with a slightly whining intonation, rises questioningly in mid-sentence, ending on a higher pitch.

Additional features include:

- An adenoidal tone where 't' and 'th' become 'd', or a 'd' is added: e.g. id does or dthe boss
- The ending '-y' (as in 'windy') becomes 'ee' and is pronounced with as much glee as the word itself, e.g. worra classee tart!
- Frequently mid-word vowels change sound (proper linguists call this the diphthong), adding to the lilting tone: e.g. Mairy likes Tony Kairtis
- The letters 'd' and 't' are aspirated into a lisping pronunciation with the addition of an 's': e.g. dsrinkin' up time, Tsony
- Where lazy southerners, especially on the BBC, omit the letter 't', Scouse substitutes an alternative, usually an 'r': e.g. norra nother one!
- As in other dialects, a 't' ending is often omitted through laziness, but Scouse changes the 't' to 'tch': e.g. play tightch up frontch
- As with most dialects, the mediaeval Anglo-Saxon '-ing' word-end is usually dropped for the hasty 'n' instead: e.g. I didn't do nutt'n. With, of course, the obligatory double negative.

Text C is an extract from an article on the website plainlanguage.gov.

Write an article in which you discuss how jargon can be the worst and the best form of communication. You should refer to ideas from language study.

Before writing your article you should state your intended audience.

[40 marks]

Text C

Jargon

Jargon is the language of specialized terms used by a group or profession. It's common shorthand among experts and used sensibly can be a quick and efficient way of communicating. Most jargon consists of unfamiliar terms, abstract words, non-existent words and acronyms and abbreviations, with an occasional euphemism thrown in for good measure. Every profession, trade and organization has its own specialized terms.

Examples

Economists

cost-push inflation, marginal-cost pricing, J-curve

Computing

ASCII, RAM, disk drive, intranets

Insurance

annuitants, arbitrate, debentures, gilts, sum assured

Photography

ASA rating, f-stop, teleconverter, TTL metering

Good communication or bad communication?

Jargon is a strange creature. We all complain about jargon, yet everyone writes it and no one ever admits using it. The reason? Jargon can be the worst form of communication – and the best.
